After more than a year of preparation, Blizzard has finally released the long-awaited Diablo 3 patch 1.0.5 and with it comes the end of Diablo 3's first major expansion, the Reaper of Souls. The new patch is scheduled to go live on all platforms at approximately 9 AM PDT on May 17th, and will be live in all regions for around a couple of hours. The patch notes can be found below. New Features: A unique Music and Sound effect system has been integrated into Diablo III. We've integrated music directly into Diablo III experience, delivering a variety of tailored sound effects such as archers firing their arrows, or the angry roar of a boss. In addition, music can be played in other areas of the game, and selected music themes can play at any time. Players can also create their own music in Diablo III through the in-game Music Store. In addition, we've integrated special effects to the game. For example, archers will now throw their arrows with varying audio and visual effects. Bosses can now also summon armors and weapons by their names. Finally, a number of other special effects have been added, such as "bursts of flame" from bosses, a special effect that can also be used to animate your Reaper banner. We hope you will enjoy this new and improved sound experience! New Artwork and Assets: The new Reaper of Souls art style has been implemented, representing the beauty of Sanctuary in a new light, and introducing a range of new enemies as well as a new melee-only protagonist for the Diablo III story. Additionally, changes have been made to almost all of the ranged and melee weapons in the game. Most of the new weapons are set to the new art style, and the remainder of the weapons have been implemented with a variety of sprites. Dramatically improved textures have been implemented for enemies, and all of them are updated to the new art style. Major Content Changes: An overhaul to the core game has been implemented. This update introduces a few major changes, as follows. 1. General: We've significantly improved responsiveness and overall performance of the game. We've improved support for keyboard and mouse users by enabling mouse scroll wheel support in the game. The game now supports Legacy Screen resizing. The game now supports mouse-wheel rotation and double click to jump. The
