What's new in The Last Companion-□□□□□□□□□□:

Momiji - the Little Mermaid. Our magikaboo is on a quest to save her beautiful face from being immersed in a tank of metallic gold... Quite a morbid start to the day, I know. But rest assured that I'd come back from a more cheerful start to the blog after the part of this story that people have become most interested in... Exactly 2 months ago today, I went to cut my hair at the hairdresser. I felt a bit nervous about getting a 90cm-ish haircut, but it turned out to be the best decision I've made in a while! Perhaps cutting my hair made me look even healthier, but it turns out looking like some bizarre child or zombie anime character can actually be good for me. So, I took something like this picture. ..But most people want to know about the rest of the story. I don't know why I did that just now, did I? Ok, I'll back track... On the next day, my friend Souren released an impression on PS Dossier, a popular online community in Japan. After giving Souren's impression, Magika Land had a sudden attention explosion and I started to hear from various people interested in what was about to go down in "Magika Land". After a review with the production team, and a brief conversation with the staff of the upcoming anime, I was accepted to be one of the villains in the series. Initially, I was kinda bummed to hear that I was about to become a villain in an anime (obviously), but a steady sellout the show has gained me a ton of fun and excitement. Let's get into some more Magika Land stuff. ;D - What kind of personality does Magika Land have? The main character in Magika Land is Momiji Otozaki. She has an optimistic outlook on life, but it can turn dark sometimes. Don't expect too much angst from her, though, because Magika Land is more about magic than romance. It's not my type of show, actually. I'm no scooby doo expert, but I've always worried about being duped or attacked by an evil villian. Magika Land is the first anime where I didn't feel like there were any evil schemes going on, and none of the villains are duping the heroines. At least not so far, at least. :p - Give us a

In a signing ceremony at the Maryland State Archives that was held in conjunction with Preservation Week, the National Park Service announced today that a bronze statue in honor of General George Washington at Fort McHenry National Monument and Historic Shrine will be unveiled this morning, at precisely the moment the War of 1812 battleship USS Constitution was fired upon by the British in 1814. "By honoring our national past, we take part in our shared American heritage. The monument and the story of its most famous defender, General Washington, will serve as a reminder that it is through the sacrifices of our history heroes that we preserve our past for future generations,” said National Park Service Director Jonathan Jarvis. The statue, currently underway as the centerpiece of the Reflections Initiative, will be officially unveiled today at the National Constitution Center at Independence Hall in Philadelphia at exactly noon, when the two-hour ceremony is to begin. The artist commissioned by the Park Service will be on hand as well as volunteers from museums including the Naval History and Heritage Command, the Smithsonian National Museum of American History and the Annapolis and Baltimore Fire Departments, who will have an opportunity to break a historical seal on a replica of the barrel of the British cannon at 6:50 a.m. The cannon will then be fired from the Maryland State House grounds at 7:45 a.m. Maryland’s hero George Washington will be joined by his towering reflection as well as William E. Russell of the U.S. Navy and Admiral James H. Burroughs, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Navy from 1994-1997. “As the last survivor of the 21 July 1814 attack on USS Constitution, William E. Russell has been asked to light and ignite the cannon as the event
