Crusader Kings II is a 4X strategy MMORPG set in medieval Europe, where the actions of one person can change the fate of an empire. Forged with a new graphics engine, this standalone expansion is the definitive strategy experience of the legendary franchise. For the first time in a strategy game, manage trade routes, construct and manage fortifications, recruit armies and fleets, declare war, and play an all new full scale campaign. Hannibal: Rome Total War is a brutally deep, fully-featured and action-packed simulation of the Hannibalic Wars. It takes place in the footsteps of Carthage's greatest military commander, Hannibal, and his army of pikemen, fearsome elephants and African cavalry as they assault northern Italy and perform one of the greatest military feats in history. At its centre is a completely new campaign system, with six new playable Carthage factions, new playable army units from Gaul, Spain, Macedonia and more to bring an exciting new depth to the battlefield. The first real-time total war wargame, Hearts of Iron IV sets the stage for one of the most dramatic and intricate stories in military history. In this sequel to the huge success Hearts of Iron III, the player takes charge of either the Allies or the Axis in 1945, after the epic D-Day landings. Responsible for driving the forces of history, you will make decisions that will shape the fate of your nation, and send them on a path to war and peace. God of War Ascension provides the first of a new trilogy of titles that will build on the award-winning gameplay introduced in the critically acclaimed God of War. Experience an epic tale of revenge, betrayal, and transformation. Set in the Greek underworld, the game focuses on Kratos, a Spartan warrior who is betrayed and stripped of his memory by Ares, the ruler of the underworld, and must seek revenge in order to restore his lost identity. The gameplay is loosely based on Greek and Norse myths about the underworld, war, and the consequences of actions. An innovative new game engine allows the player to capture, manipulate and reflect light, and use the environment to an unprecedented degree. This unique concept, inspired by the Penrose tiling, allows the player to interact with the elements of the environment, and the visual environment to interact with the game. Infiltrate the enemy lines, annihilate their defenses, and inflict catastrophic damage to their command centers as you command a team of highly skilled and special forces soldiers to

Once the hero arrives you can continue to move around and adjust the placement of traps, either by placing more, or by moving the ones you have already placed. What's new:

(Why I'm Moving to Kill) The High Street is calling. There are signs in the windows of local shops promising promotions, special offers, and cut price deals. Everyone has a go-shop black wallet with 'seller' in large blue lettering on the back. Next door the Bank tells me they have a 20% interest rate on all bank savings accounts and investment accounts. I didn't want to go, as this neighbourhood has seen better days. My parents bought a house here, back in the 1970s when it was a quiet, villagey sort of place, with a scenic canal running through it that washed over the ridge behind our house in our primary school days. While it's grown with the times since, it seems to me that the last decade has reminded it of its former peaceful self. We don't fit in, here. Back in the day we were considered to be both filthy rich and frugal. It was a nice area, not exactly peaceful, but certainly less hectic than where we ended up, but even that it hardly rate. The village is named after our late GP, Dr Hollis Broughton. He was a big supporter of the countryside, although he was torn between whether to live in London or in the countryside. He chose the former but came to prefer a more rural and therefore peaceful life. The choice had its downside as he frequently moved from clinic to clinic in his last years, changing his family here and there as he changed his mind. However, in recent years he finally felt happy in Biggleswade and decided to make it his home, so we were settling into my brother's old bachelor flat in Bury Saint Edmunds when he died late in 2007. It was supposed to be a temporary arrangement, until we were uprooted again, this time to a pub half a league from our house. A dark hole in Bury Saint Edmunds, the King is an excellent local but feels a little too near to the Tedworth finishing line for a Sunday afternoon. To drink a pint of local ale on a day in the sun, surrounded by nature, is very agreeable but we were drawn, as usual to the nearest pub instead, which lives up to the high expectations friends and family have of it, The Fawley Arms. Things seemed to be getting back on the right track. The bar was new and looked good. Poisons stock had been increased and there
