parameter Is it possible to pass a javascript function to another javascript function and have that function executed as a result. For example: function func1() { document.write("X"); } function func2() { func1(); } How can I write func1() so that the script in func1() is called when func2() is called? The motivation for this question is I wish to use a js function passed to a function as a parameter, and be able to execute it as a result of the function. In other words,

Run from your desktop as Administrator[Community-acquired methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus: emergence of methicillin-resistant S. aureus in a Swiss community]. Studies in Israel as well as in Australia, the United States and the United Kingdom have demonstrated that the incidence of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) has increased in many countries worldwide. We report the first identification of MRSA in Switzerland and the first isolated MRSA strain, in the Canton of Bern, from a community-acquired infection. The isolates were retrieved from blood cultures obtained from three hospitalised patients, from patients screened for S. aureus nasal carriage and from healthy individuals selected from the Canton of Bern. Susceptibility to antibiotics was studied by E-test. All isolates were genotyped by pulsed-field gel electrophoresis (PFGE) and by multilocus sequence typing (MLST). We confirmed the identity of the isolates by partial nucleotide sequencing of the nuc gene encoding nuc and spa gene sequences. The strains differed by PFGE and MLST from methicillin-resistant S. aureus (MRSA) isolated from hospitalised patients, as well as from the community-acquired MRSA described in several countries. These data confirm the emergence of community-acquired MRSA in Switzerland.
