Similarity of results obtained from docetaxel, epirubicin, and cyclophosphamide as first-line treatment in advanced breast cancer. Between 1995 and 2002, an optimal regimen (group A) of docetaxel, epirubicin, and cyclophosphamide for first-line treatment of advanced breast cancer was tested in two clinical trials--EORTC TRIAL 99203 (N = 105) and -406 (N = 101)--at two institutions. It proved the effectiveness of this chemotherapy regimen, with a median survival time ranging from 30 to 49 months and a median response duration of 7 to 9 months. To validate a second regimen of docetaxel, epirubicin, and cyclophosphamide (E/C) (group B) and docetaxel plus cyclophosphamide (T/C) (group C), respectively, a prospective comparison was performed. Between 2001 and 2002, we consecutively administered first-line treatment with docetaxel, epirubicin, and cyclophosphamide (every 3 weeks) to 90 patients or paclitaxel and cyclophosphamide (every 3 weeks) to 72 patients who were pathologically staged III/IV and who were treated at another institution (group A, n = 90)
